Your Tasks

- Partner with in-house publishing producers and user research teams to gather insights and inform clear action across product development and business decisions
- Drive the development and execution of brand & marketing strategy/planning anchored in our player needs
- Turn that work into compelling and inspiring brand plans, including positioning and USP
- Identify authentic players' lifestyle and creative trends to support marketing asset development
- Help define the games marketing communication plans using product information and/or consumer studies
- Work closely with games studios, publishing partners and cross-functional teams ensuring brand tone, personality and positioning is consistent between in-game and out-of-game touchpoints
- Enable brand partnerships thus increasing the cultural relevance of the brands within and outside the gaming space
- Establish effective working relationships with territory-based teams (PR, Trade, Sales, Community Management, Events, & Online) along with senior management
- Follow-up on key local activities to analyse its impact on territory results
- Evangelise brands to external partners (1st parties, licensors and agencies)
- Support the development of the global business plan and financial budgets in cooperation with senior management
- Represent, extend, communicate and oversee product brand and marketing strategies at all times, ensuring local campaigns are executed as globally intended

Your Profile

- A passion for video games
- A BA in Business, Marketing or equivalent experience
- 1-2 years' experience in brand management and product marketing, ideally within the video game, related media and/or creative agency space
- Experience in multi-territory or local marketing creative campaign management
- Well organised: the ability to work effectively on concurrent tasks, ability to adapt to change and an eye for detail
- Strong written and verbal knowledge of English; proficiency in an additional European language is beneficial
- The ability to deliver convincing arguments and share creative vision
- Team player with strong interpersonal skills
- An understanding of the video game production process
- Solid business, analytical and critical thinking skills
- The ability to clarify and summarise complex issues, in a fast-paced environment, on a global level with multiple countries

Further qualifications would be a plus

- Technical knowledge of console and PCs
- Experience in managing budgets
- Willingness and ability to travel, both national and international
